FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

THE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON COHESIVE SOCIETIES TO BE HELD IN SEPTEMBER THIS YEAR

Global interfaith conference in Singapore to address the challenges polarising societies by bringing together leaders of faith for dialogue on social cohesion, with focus on youth 29 July 2022 (Friday), Singapore – The International Conference on Cohesive Societies (ICCS) will make its return from 6 to 8 September 2022, bringing together leaders from policy, community, academic and religious spheres from around the world to discuss key challenges pulling at our social fabric and approaches to managing them. This is the second edition of the Conference after the inaugural edition in 2019.

2. The ICCS is organised by the S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies (RSIS) and supported by the Ministry of Culture, Community and Youth (MCCY). This year's ICCS will be held at the Raffles City Convention Centre in Singapore.

3. Themed “Confident Identities, Connected Communities”, the three-day Conference seeks to examine the role of identities in shaping how individuals connect with each other and their communities. Through a series of plenary and breakout discussions, delegates will engage in conversations around three main pillars of faith, identity and cohesion. Delegates will discuss issues including the role of faith in bridging divides, how diversity can be harnessed for the common good, and the ways in which technology can help bridge differences and foster mutual trust.

4. Mdm Halimah Yacob, President of the Republic of Singapore, will deliver the opening address, and Singapore's Minister for Finance and Deputy Prime Minister Lawrence Wong will be helming a dialogue session on the final day. International and local thought leaders who will be speaking at the event include André Azoulay, Senior Adviser to King Mohammed VI of Morocco; Professor Lily Kong, President,

Singapore Management University; and Imam Uzair Akbar, Imam of Holland Park Mosque in Australia. (The full list of confirmed speakers and moderators can be found in the Annex.)

5. Delegates will also have the opportunity to participate in an immersive Community Experience, including visits to various neighbourhoods and places of worship across the island. They will interact with local community partners and get a first-hand taste of Singapore's interfaith experience.

Young Leaders Programme

6. Recognising youth leaders and the key role they play in creating an inclusive society, the Young Leaders Programme (YLP) – a flagship segment of the ICCS – will provide young regional and international leaders the platform to network and collaborate on social cohesion and community-building. The YLP will feature a community showcase of local youth-led initiatives in various mediums (auditory, visual and augmented reality) to spur future collaborations. During a fireside chat with young regional leaders of faith, Father Fiel Pareja (Archdiocese of San Fernando, Pampanga, Philippines) and Reverend Chris Lee (an Anglican priest-in-charge at St. Saviour's Church in Wendell Park, West London; United Kingdom), as well as with Yasmin Jay (a Lebanese-Australian fashion designer and entrepreneur), YLP delegates will engage in a deep exchange on harnessing social media for good.

7. To underscore the importance of building international networks of trust and co-operation, the YLP will be facilitated by overseas speakers Rabbi Shoshana Boyd Gelfand (Director, Pears Hub), Krish Raval and Denny Braggins (Faith in Leadership, a UK-based civic body focused on strengthening intra- and inter-faith relations), and local interfaith advocate Mohamed Imran Mohamed Taib. They will be supported by local community facilitators, including former delegates who took part in YLP 2019.

8. Mdm Halimah Yacob, President of the Republic of Singapore, said, "COVID-19 was not just a health crisis, but also a socio-economic one. In many countries we are now seeing its impact on various populations, whether that be loss of livelihoods, nationwide mental health issues across the young and old, and disagreements on how to best move forward from the pandemic. The pandemic has also brought polarisation and social isolation to the fore. It has thus reminded us again of the need to come together as a global community and have important conversations on how we can promote social harmony through our shared beliefs, values and aspirations. ICCS 2022 is a timely opportunity to take stock and reflect on how our communities can be brought closer and move forward together.”

9. Ong Keng Yong, Executive Deputy Chairman of RSIS and Ambassador-at-Large at the Singapore Ministry of Foreign Affairs said, “We are in the digital era with new technologies relentlessly changing the way we live, work and play. We face many challenges as well as opportunities in mutual learning and strengthening common values for the common good. ICCS 2022 will be a useful platform to discuss how technologies can be a positive force in facilitating online worship, especially during a global crisis such as the COVID-19 pandemic, and in managing interfaith exchanges and relationships. The Conference will also build on the youth engagement from the inaugural ICCS 2019 to prepare young leaders for their roles in cementing social cohesion in their respective societies.”

10. More information on ICCS 2022 is available on the official website www.iccs.sg. Further updates and announcements on the Conference will also be released on the website as well as the ICCS official Facebook, Instagram and Twitter channels.

Young Leaders Programme: Workshop by Faith in Leadership

Community Exploration

Special Presentation: Perspectives on social cohesion (Day 1)

Setting the stage for ICCS 2022, the keynote address will cover how differences in culture, beliefs, value systems and the many identities we have as individuals impact social cohesion.

1st Plenary: How faith can bridge divides (Day 1)

This Plenary seeks to critically examine the reasons for the rise and endurance of social polarisation due to ideological or religious beliefs. With a stronger understanding of these divides and the reasons behind them, we hope that some of the lessons gleaned can be applied to foster inter-religious peace and harmony in plural societies both across the region and well beyond.

2nd Plenary: How diversity can be harnessed for the common good (Day 2)

This Plenary seeks to discuss the issue of super-diversity and get a better understanding of intersectionality. It will discuss the tools for interactions with people of different and overlapping identities. An appreciation of the complex but important role of intersectionality in social cohesion would allow us to increase social capital, for people to form deep bonds despite differences towards creating common good.

3rd Plenary: How technology can be leveraged to foster mutual trust (Day 2)

This session will ask: given that we know digital platforms can create echo chambers and be used for divisive ends, how can we employ them to promote social cohesion? People's identities are part of this, including their religious identities, but practical examples of how cohesion is built online, and with technologies such as social media, is central to this plenary. Looking from different global angles and focusing on areas such as community-building, preventing and countering violent extremism, and mapping global peacebuilding, this session will seek to show how online platforms may be beacons of cohesion and hope, rather than division and hatred.

Breakout Session 1 (Day 2)

Delegates will choose one to attend

Faith 1: Religion, Resilience & Cohesion (International Perspective)

This breakout session looks at different faith-based strategies in identifying and safeguarding vulnerable individuals or communities from radicalisation, and building resilience against divisive, even extremist, religious narratives.

Identity 1: Languages, Identity and Belonging

This breakout group examines how languages shape our perceptions on reality and our understanding of linguistic identities. Identity and language are key in building one's sense of belonging. This breakout group can explore how the limits in languages, the evolution of vocabulary and use of colloquialism affect the way we see ourselves and build our sense of belonging, and how we differentiate ourselves from others.

Cohesion 1: Hate & Conspiracy Online

This breakout session further investigates issues raised during Plenary 3 around hate, prejudice, and conspiracy online, with a key focus on conspiracy theories.

Breakout Session 2 (Day 3)

Delegates will choose one to attend

Faith 2: Religion, Resilience & Cohesion (Regional Perspective)

This breakout session focuses on building dialogue on faith at a regional level. It seeks to understand how religious leaders and communities are working to develop cohesion beyond their traditions to build resilient societies and communities.

Identity 2: Diversity & Intersections (Public Policy & Common Space)

This breakout session discusses public policies across the world that have helped identify and safeguard vulnerable individuals and communities from radicalisation, and how common spaces have been found to build resilience against divisive, extremist and religious narratives in communities.

Cohesion 2: Connectivity and Connectedness

This breakout session examines good practices and case studies of people who have used online platforms to build connections between different groups and to strengthen social cohesion. The session will also be used to understand what social media companies have been doing to promote social cohesion.

Breakout Session 3 (Day 3)

Delegates will choose one to attend

Faith 3: Faith Overcoming COVID-19 Pandemic

This breakout session explores how traditions have evolved over this challenging global COVID-19 pandemic in relation to practice rituals and ways to worship.

Identity 3: Religion & Social Justice

This breakout session discusses some of the ways that religious identities inform social justice work, which in turn helps to deepen connections across various groups in society and promote socially cohesive bonds. Areas explored may include overcoming racial and ethnic prejudice, protecting vulnerable individuals and communities beset by a lack of environmental justice, and countering radical and extremist narratives. It will seek to demonstrate examples of good practice and provide practical steps for working towards social justice from within various religious worldviews and identities.

Cohesion 3: Youth Work Initiatives

This breakout session looks explicitly at the work of youth leaders in social cohesion across Asia.
